FIAF SUPPORTERS

In 2013, FIAF launched a new partnership programme which gives non-profit organizations (foundations, museums, universities) and commercial companies (laboratories, equipment suppliers, etc) with a keen interest in film heritage issues, an opportunity to develop a more formal relationship with FIAF and its affiliates, and to support FIAF's activities financially via an annual donation. This new initiative, which stems from the former group of "FIAF Donors", not only clarifies but also enhances the practical benefits enjoyed by those organizations. More information on this programme and its benefits are available on the FIAF website.

En 2013, la FIAF a initié un nouveau programme de partenariat qui permet aux organisations sans but lucratif (fondations, musées, universités) ainsi qu'aux entreprises commerciales (laboratoires, fournisseurs de matériel, etc) ayant un vif intérêt pour les questions liées au patrimoine cinématographique, de développer une relation plus formelle avec la FIAF et ses affiliés, tout en soutenant financièrement les activités de la FIAF par un don annuel. Cette nouvelle catégorie, qui remplace celle des «donateurs» de la FIAF, veut clarifier et améliorer les avantages concrets dont bénéficient ces organisations. De plus amples informations sur ce programme et ses avantages sont disponibles sur le site internet de la FIAF.

Les Films du Jeudi (founded in 1964) is now the main and best-known of the companies successively founded in 1929 (Les Films du Panthéon, ex Cinéma du Panthéon) and 1945 (Les Films de la Pléiade).

Les Films du Jeudi continues to manage the catalogue of films produced by Pierre Braunberger (1905-1990) from 1925 to the present day (111 feature films, 165 documentaries, and 130 shorts), as well as films acquired from other companies. In 1991 his daughter Laurence Braunberger took over the management of the companies, focusing on the restoration of films in the catalogue. She has continued to produce films to which she feels a special commitment.

Gaumont est née avec le cinéma; plus de 120 ans dans le cinéma, avec le cinéma, au service du cinéma et d'abord des films.

Gaumont est une société en évolution: riche de sa culture, elle s'adapte aux évolutions de son temps; elle insuffle de la nouveauté dans la continuité.

Gaumont a toujours été une société patrimoniale, c'est un choix, c'est une force. Un patrimoine géré avec une très grande implication, regroupant des archives, d'actualités entre autres, un musée, un catalogue de plus 1 000 films. Attentive à la préservation de ses droits et de ceux qu'elle représente Gaumont a constitué, en France, le second catalogue de films, dont elle a produit la plus grande partie.

Le coeur du métier de Gaumont est la production de films.

Gaumont est ambitieuse et développe un important programme de productions à la ligne éditoriale large et équilibrée.

Une production annuelle d'une dizaine de films par an offrant une grande diversité: premier film, comédie, film d'action, film policier, film en langue anglaise à vocation plus internationale...

Haghefilm Digitaal: “The Gold Standard for film conservation”. This quote from an article published by showbiz newspaper Variety on the occasion of the world premiere of the restored Orson Welles film Too Much Johnson briefly indicates what Haghefilm Digitaal is all about.

In its history of over a hundred years, the company has never failed to keep up with the rapidly changing needs of the moving picture industry. Today this century of experience, combined with the advanced possibilities Haghefilm Digitaal can offer in the fields of digital image and sound processing, forms the basis for the lab’s excellent reputation among audio-visual heritage preservation institutions.

Haghefilm Digitaal can offer all photochemical processes, as well as digitization and digital restoration of film material at the highest possible level. With the recent installation of the DFT Scanity with wet-gate option the company can meet the highest requirements set by film archives for digitization work. Besides the production of all required digital deliverables, Haghefilm Digitaal is one of the few labs that can transfer digitally restored material back to polyester-based 35mm film for long-term storage.

If you would like to learn more about the devotion of the people at Haghefilm Digitaal with respect to the preservation of historical cinema treasures for the future, please contact Peter Roelofs or René Stapel at Haghefilm Digitaal.

Paris – the city where the Lumière Brothers invented the cinema – and more precisely Place de Clichy – has hosted the French site of L'Immagine Ritrovata since the summer 2016.

L'Immagine Ritrovata has always had a very strong relationship with the French cinema and the professional bodies working with their cinematic heritage, be they public or private. The laboratory in Paris makes possible a closer dialogue with French rights-holders, technicians, and researchers, and allows us to respond more effectively to the ever-growing demand from realities, both in France and from other countries for whom Paris is a natural destination.

This is an opportunity to share the approach to film restoration that we have been developing for 25 years, not only in terms of technology but also aesthetics and philology.

L'Immagine Ritrovata has two branches abroad, in Hong Kong (L'Immagine Ritrovata Asia) and Paris (L'Image Retrouvée). They enable L'Immagine Ritrovata to respond more effectively to the ever-growing demand from foreign archives, film libraries, and researchers.

L'Immagine Ritrovata is one of the main organizers of the FIAF Film Restoration Summer School, which has been taking place in Bologna since 2007 and will be held there again in 2018. The school has also been hosted in Singapore (November 2013), Mumbai (February 2015), and Buenos Aires (2017).

The Entertainment ID Registry Association (EIDR) is a not-for-profit industry association that was founded by major Hollywood studios, content distributors, and technology companies to meet a crucial need across the entertainment supply chain for universal identifiers for a broad array of audio-visual objects.

EIDR can play a crucial role in increasing supply chain efficiencies by eliminating costly translations between proprietary ID systems; lowering risks of misidentification caused by duplication and lack of ID uniqueness; improving internal asset tracking; and improving ability to match assets and metadata from different databases, service providers, or metadata suppliers. Such efficiencies are especially crucial in the online retail distribution of home entertainment.

EIDR provides a web service interface to the Registry with a set of APIs for developers of third-party applications and services, such as workflow integration, reporting, and linking to enhanced metadata. Examples of such applications and services include: more granular and more accurate rights tracking and reporting down to the level of clips, composites and encodings; enhanced content discovery; and detailed consumption metrics for individual assets.

Interoperability is a central focus for EIDR. Three key areas are: application appropriate representations of the EIDR ID; extensible support for identifiers from other systems as first class metadata elements; registration of EIDR content records based on metadata from other systems, including the very important case of standards based metadata.

America's pre-eminent film presentation organization, The Film Society of Lincoln Center was founded in 1969 to celebrate American and international cinema, to recognize and support new filmmakers, and to enhance awareness, accessibility and understanding of the art among a broad and diverse film-going audience.

As an independent constituent of the world's foremost performing arts center, the Film Society of Lincoln Center presents year-round programming that includes premieres of new films from an international roster of established and emerging directors; major retrospectives; in-depth symposia and high-profile events.

The Film Society is best-known for two world-class international festivals — the New York Film Festival (the most famous and prestigious in the country), and New Directors/ New Films (celebrating new cinematic artists). It runs two state-of-the-art year-round cinemas, the Walter Reade Theater (268 seats) and the Elinor Bunin Munroe Film Center (90 seats, 150 seats, and the 75-seat Amphitheater), and publishes the country's most respected cinema journal, Film Comment. Each year the organization presents its annual Gala Tribute honoring legendary stars and industry leaders of our generation at Lincoln Center's Alice Tully Hall. At various times of the year the Film Society partners with Hollywood studios to present premieres and special live appearances.

The HTW – University of Applied Science’s degree course in the preservation of audiovisual cultural heritage offers a uniquely interdisciplinary training approach. Film preservation, the youngest of conservation and restoration disciplines, is pursued in an in-depth programme within the entire context of cultural heritage conservation.

Course topics for the audiovisual preservation curriculum – one of four specializations offered by the programme – thus range from restoration ethics to art history, from cultural to film and photo history; manual photography retouching to digital image processing; general materials science to photographic chemistry; and collection surveys and passive conservation to film reconstruction and restoration. A choice of individual projects, course and thesis subjects, and external internships allows students to pursue a broader education, or to focus on a particular area of interest (for instance, film preservation or sound restoration).

The school offers both a Bachelor’s degree and a Master’s programme. Graduates from the programme have thus found employment in institutions ranging from EYE Filmmuseum to the Deutsche Kinemathek, from the Swedish Film Institute to the Bundesarchiv/German Federal Archives.

Teaching is both in German and English; thus a knowledge of German is required for taking part in the programme. However, certified proficiency is only required after the first year of study. International visitors have always been a vital and integral part of the student body, and the programme aims to further its global approach. Thus, international candidates interested in studying moving image preservation in Germany, in one of the world’s most vibrant municipalities, are emphatically encouraged to apply.

Au sein de la Direction de la médiation et de la programmation culturelle du Musée du Louvre, dont l'objectif est de favoriser par tous les moyens la rencontre du public avec les œuvres, la sous-direction de l'auditorium rend compte de la vie des collections par une programmation qui interroge le regard sur les œuvres, le palais et l'histoire du Louvre.

Cette programmation propose ainsi dans l'auditorium, salle de spectacle de 450 places, près de 200 manifestations par saison – conférences et colloques, spectacle vivant et cinéma – qui attirent au musée environ 70 000 spectateurs par an.

La programmation cinéma fait écho aux expositions et à la vie des collections et s'articule autour de plusieurs axes: cycles thématiques, rétrospectives et cartes blanches, avant-premières, festival et projection régulière de films sur l'art ainsi que des spectacles associant cinéma et musique. L'auditorium a également constitué un fonds de films sur l'art visant à reconstituer une histoire du film sur l'art.

Curriculum

The Master of Arts degree in Moving Image Archiving and Preservation (MIAP) is an interdisciplinary course of study that trains future professionals to manage and preserve collections of film, video, and digital works. The program provides an international, comprehensive education in the theories, methods, and practices of moving image archiving and preservation. The curriculum includes courses on the conservation and preservation of film, video, digital, and multimedia works; collection management; moving image metadata; copyright and legal issues; curatorial work; the cultures of museums, archives, and libraries; and the histories of film and television. MIAP takes full advantage of its New York City location, giving students opportunities to work with local archives, museums, libraries, labs, and arts organizations.

Internships

Internships give students experience with multiple institutions, each with its own organizational culture and approach to archiving and preservation. Students complete two intensive semester-long internships and one full-time summer internship. Semester internships are New York-based and accompanied by an internship seminar. For the summer internship, many students travel outside of New York City to work on collections in other parts of the country or abroad.

Careers

MIAP students graduate with a solid academic grounding in media history and substantial practical work experience in a variety of audiovisual collections. Our graduates have careers as preservationists, archivists, research scholars, and conservators in diverse organizations: museums, library preservation departments, regional and national archives, digital libraries, media arts and heritage organizations, as well as production and distribution companies.

When Rainer Werner Fassbinder died on June 10, 1982, it quickly became clear that in his brief, 16-year creative period he had succeeded in portraying and polarizing German society as no one else before him, and his unique artistic estate had to be saved and preserved. Therefore Lieselotte Eder, Fassbinder's mother, founded in 1986 the private, not-for-profit Rainer Werner Fassbinder Foundation (RWFF) and entrusted it soon after to Ms. Lorenz, Fassbinder's film editor and last partner, who since 1992 has served the RWFF as president and managing director.

Fassbinder's most famous movies include titles like The Merchant of Four Seasons, The Bitter Tears of Petra von Kant, Effi Briest, Ali – Fear Eats the Soul, The Marriage of Maria Braun, Berlin Alexanderplatz, Lili Marleen, Lola, Veronika Voss, and Querelle. His complete oeuvre as a playwright, actor, writer-director, prose- and song-writer, as well as a producer, encompasses over 150 titles.

The RWFF's main goal is to preserve and nurture Fassbinder's complete artistic work, and make it available worldwide in all its present forms of presentation. The Foundation holds all rights to Fassbinder's estate, including rights that were subsequently acquired.

The Foundation has produced or initiated worldwide retrospectives and/or exhibitions of Fassbinder film or theatre works, with MoMA (1997), the BFI (1999), the Centre Pompidou (2005), and the Deutsches Theatermuseum (2012), and is in permanent collaboration with the Goethe-Institut, which operates worldwide. Our last project, on the occasion of the anniversary of Fassbinder's 70th birthday, produced by the Deutsche Filminstitut/Deutsches Filmmuseum in 2014/2015 and presented at Martin-Gropius-Bau Berlin, was "Fassbinder-Jetzt", which has toured worldwide from 2016 onwards.

The RWFF is also a pioneer in the field of film restorations and new exploitation forms of world cinema heritage, for example, Berlin Alexanderplatz (2007) or World on a Wire (2010). The latest restoration project, of the five-part mini-series Eight Hours Don't Make a Day, written and directed by Rainer Werner Fassbinder and produced by the German television station Westdeutscher Rundfunk (WDR) in 1972, was presented at the 67th Berlinale in 2017.

Jon Gartenberg has long-standing, close ties to FIAF. For nearly 20 years he was a curator in MoMA's film archive, where he worked on preservation projects ranging from the films of D.W. Griffith to those of Andy Warhol. He acquired experimental films for MoMA's permanent collection, and curated numerous exhibitions based on MoMA's archival holdings. In the early 1980s he pioneered the conversion of MoMA's film catalogue from a manual one to a PC-based computerized system.

He attended the first FIAF Summer School in the German Democratic Republic, and presented papers on early cinema at the Brighton Congress in 1978, on slapstick at the MoMA Congress in 1985, and on experimental films at the Athens Congress in 1991. Additionally, he was a member of the FIAF Cataloguing Commission from 1981-1991, and editor of the FIAF Glossary of Filmographic Terms (1985 and 1989 editions).

After MoMA, Gartenberg worked on organizing and distributing moving image collections at Broadway Video and Golden Books Family Entertainment. He currently heads his own company, Gartenberg Media Enterprises (www.gartenbergmedia.com). He has recovered significant celluloid film collections from commercial warehouse storage, which were then acquired by archives in the U.S. and abroad. He has also overseen a long-term project to further the legacy of film artist Warren Sonbert through a program of preservation, distribution, exhibition and study, and has curated exhibitions of this filmmaker's work at FIAF archives internationally. In addition, his company distributes DVDs that have been produced by archives and boutique publishers to universities in North America.

Laurence Kardish, former Senior Curator of Film at The Museum of Modern Art, organized over a thousand film and moving-image exhibitions during his 44-year career at MoMA, borrowing materials from FIAF members for many of these retrospectives and surveys. As a board member of the Fassbinder Foundation, USA, a consultant for the Cohen Media Group's Quad Cinema, a founder of SaveFilm.org, and a teacher at New York's School of Visual Arts, Kardish brings an appreciation of and enthusiasm for the critical work done by FIAF members to his current activities. He is also the co-artistic director of Film Columbia, a festival in upstate New York which includes recently restored films, and is working on a book about Shirley Clarke, a text which would not have been possible without the preservation of Clarke's films and digital works.

In 2017 he did consultancy work for the Rainer Werner Fassbinder Foundation in regard to the establishment of a Fassbinder Research Center at the Deutsches Filmmuseum in Frankfurt. He is also a curatorial consultant for an exhibition about American Cinema scheduled to take place at the Jewish Museum and Tolerance Center in Moscow in 2019. As Artistic Director of the FilmColumbia festival in Chatham, New York, he screened Heiner Carow's recently restored DEFA feature, Die Russen Kommen (The Russians are Coming,) shot in 1968 and edited in 1987.

Adrian Wood has been a supporter of FIAF since 2008. He has worked with archival material for over 40 years, either in the context of documentary production for broadcast and theatrical purposes or in the restoration of motion picture films. This work involves the identification of material, the understanding of associated rights to material, the acquisition of material, and the assessment of collections, and has ranged across all film, video, and digital formats from the 1890s until today.

Restorations supervised by him, both digital and analog, of work by directors such as Fanck, Riefenstahl, Ichikawa, Marcellini, and Shinoda, have screened at festivals in Cannes, Venice, Tokyo, and Moscow, as well as at cinematheques around the world. His concept to promote restoration in Asia through "Restoration Asia" continues.

While retaining a deep commitment to the supervision of restorations, he continues to develop productions led by archival content. His commitment to research and the discovery of forgotten content has led to him being honoured with several prestigious international awards for both production and restoration in the U.K. and the U.S. He is currently based in Japan.

His mantra for many years has been, and remains, "It is not that something is lost or no longer exists; we simply need to continue the search until we find it."
